Training

Health & Safety Solutions

Providing health and safety training sends a clear message to your workforce that you are concerned about their wellbeing, and care that they work in a safe environment. A significant part of the management of health and safety comes from the training provided, which enables your staff to work in a safe and comfortable manner.

COBCOE are delighted to provide a broad range of easily accessible online health and safety training courses, for the benefit of employees or the management team. This simple yet effective learning system also allows employers to track training progress, and retain certificates of completion should they be required. For more information go to www.cobcoetraining.com or for a detailed list of information about each of the courses available go to www.cobcoetraining.com/training.
